THE MOUNT COOK GROUP LTD

New Zealand's largest private enterprise transport organisation. That's the description that has often been given to the Mount Cook Group Ltd., nation-wide operators of scheduled air and road services, freightlines, agricultural aviation, Coronet Peak ski field, a chain of travel offices, packaged tours, rental cars, sightseeing and flightseeing services.

To that impressive list could also be added a lime quarry, a new car franchise and, for good measure, a quarter-share in one of New Zealand's most important tourist hotel chains.

The full range of operation stretches from Kaitaia in the north where the company has a major interest, to Te Anau and Manapouri in the south. In actual operation it stretches even further north than Kaitaia with the daily sightseeing operation from the Bay of Islands to Cape Reinga.

The run is so regular it could almost be called scheduled.

In the North Island the scheduled two-way daily service between Auckland and Wellington by Mount Cook Landlines is one of the glamour runs with the new, large (the largest in the Southern Hemisphere) MC-D Jumbo-Liners. No less appreciated however are the services which operate in the Hawkes Bay region and link through from Gisborne, Napier and Hastings to Taupo and then north to Auckland or connecting south to Wellington.

Other North Island coach services are from the Wairapa to Palmerston North and from Taupo to the ski resort area of Tongariro National Park and local services in the Hawkes Bay area.

In the South Island similar scheduled services operate from Christchurch south to Timaru, Mount Cook, Lake Wanaka, to Queenstown.

Last year the company's scheduled coach services carried over one million passengers. Their total vehicle fleet comes to well over 200 with something over 160 being devoted to tourist work.

In the air Mount Cook Airlines has become internationally acclaimed as the airline that flies the world's most scenic air routes. It's fleet is 44 aircraft strong, if you include the fifth airliner soon to be delivered.

Not all the 44 are devoted to scheduled services or flightseeing operations. Some thirteen are committed to agricultural aviation with Central Aviation in such places as Naseby, Balclutha, Roxburgh, Mossburn, and the like. And two are sheer fun aircraft — one the historical Auster Aiglet in which Sir Henry Wigley made the first ski-plane landing and the other a time-honoured Tiger Moth.

Again, the airline routes span the length of the country from the Bay of Islands in the north to Te Anau in the south.

Steady demand from both overseas and the domestic market have encouraged the company to increase its frequency on the Christchurch — Rotorua — Auckland route from two per day to three per day as from the middle of October.

Credit for the growing demand in the local market must go in some good measure to the company's progressive policy of in-flight snacks with complimentary wine and general in-flight attention to the passenger, which often can include visits to the flight deck.

The route network extends south from Christchurch to Mount Cook, Queenstown, Te Anau and Manapouri and from Queenstown to Alexandra and Queenstown. Additional regional services operate between Rotorua, Auckland and the Bay of Islands.

Flightseeing, by ski-planes, is at Mount Cook, Franz Josef and Fox Glaciers. Just on 50,000 ski-plane passengers are carried annually to the high snowfields of the southern alps.

All these operations are skilfully controlled from the company's four-storey head office building in Christchurch. But the extension of these management skills are evident in the field be it a travel office in Paihia or Milford Sound, or a fertilizer spreader in South Canterbury.

Some 750 people make up the combined staff of the Mount Cook Group — not only the largest but possibly the country's most versatile private transport organisation.
